

Zeiler Floyd Zadkovich launched as international law firm boutique

In an equal merger of the successful zeiler.partners and Floyd Zadkovich, new firm Zeiler Floyd Zadkovich announced today that it will provide a collaborative, client-centred and seamless approach across legal jurisdictions in New York, Vienna, London, Mexico City, Chicago, Houston and Sydney.

Both legacy firms are merging from a position of strength and for future growth, as outlined by partner, Gerold Zeiler (Vienna and New York):

“Zeiler Floyd Zadkovich will give us significantly enhanced capacity to provide international advocacy through our combination of common law and civil law attorneys. It joins two outstanding teams with impressive international recognitions into an exciting new firm that is tailored to meet clients’ needs across the globe.”

Edward Floyd, partner in New York, explained:

“We’ve combined our US, UK and Australian law firm with a highly respected European and Mexican counterpart to form a strong, strategic alliance for the future global context. It will enable us to expand the scale, geographical reach and type of work we provide, as well as provide a structure to advise on the legal consequences of Britain’s exit from Europe.”

Luke Zadkovich, partner (New York, London and Sydney), emphasised:

“The One Global Team approach of Zeiler Floyd Zadkovich will continue to place clients at the core of all we do. We will retain the personal touch of a boutique that our clients so greatly value. We look forward to our collaboration with shared purpose and confidence in our unique offering.”
